The Washington Scholars Program

The 1981 Legislature created the Washington Scholars program to honor the accomplishments of the most exemplary high school seniors graduating in Washington each year. The award represents the highest meritorious academic honor conferred on these young residents by the state's government and education leaders.

High school principals were encouraged to nominate the top one percent of their graduating senior classes for Washington Scholars recognition on the basis of academic achievement, leadership, and community service. Historically, designation has been limited to three Scholars and one alternate in each of the state's 49 legislative districts. This year recognition has been extended to all eligible students nominated by their high school principals. Recognition as a Washington Scholar includes no monetary scholarship.

A total of 654 high school seniors are honored as Washington Scholars from the graduating class of 2015, nominated by 263 high schools across the state. This directory presents those Washington Scholars, their hometowns, high schools, intended fields of study (where known), and the state legislative district of residence. Personal detail for Scholars who have requested non-publication has been omitted; however, their presence is acknowledged in the section listing the Scholars by high school.

The Washington Student Achievement Council administers the Washington Scholars program in cooperation with the Association of Washington School Principals. We are honored to extend congratulations to the Washington Scholars of 2015 on behalf of the state's government and education leaders.
