Synopsis:	The Washington Student Achievement Council—as created by 2012 legislation—describes both the nine-member Council with its broad strategic responsibilities, as well as the agency that supports the Council and carries out various specific statutory duties, including program administration, grants management, and consumer protection functions. This discussion is designed to ensure that Council members are comfortable with delegation of authority for rule-making and other actions necessary for efficient and effective program administration.
Guiding questions:	Do Council members receive adequate information about agency actions and program activity through Executive Director’s updates and Council committee involvement? Is WSAC (the agency) appropriately accountable to the Council for oversight of program administration through its Executive Director and staff?
