

Regional Partnerships: Legislative Report on Program Implementation (December 2024)

Appendix A. Educational Outcomes in RCG Service Regions, by Geographic Region

Appendix A includes publicly available data at the district level for all school districts within at least one RCG partnership's service region, as required by RCW 28B.120.060. Specifically, we identify district-level high school graduation rates, direct to college enrollment rates, and college completion rates overall and by race/ethnicity, FRPL status, and ELL program participation.

These reporting classifications, including a reliance on federally defined categories for race/ethnicity, are indicative of a larger challenge with administrative data. Even at its best, administrative data cannot capture the multitude of experiences and identities present within individuals and across communities, and the need to ensure privacy leads to data suppression that further limits what can be reported. The result is often aggregate categorizations—such as Asian or multiracial—that cannot demonstrate the diversity of lived experiences that are embedded in these categories.

In this Appendix, we organize the relevant school districts by broad geographic regions across the state. This use of school district boundaries to define service regions reflects the need to report population-level outcomes using an easily identifiable administrative delineation of geography. At the same time, there are limitations to examining educational outcomes at the district level. RCG partnerships operate from distinct definitions of regionality and serve learners across multiple school districts. For WSU NAHS in particular, the majority of the partnership's work takes place on tribal reservations in Central and Eastern Washington—geographies that are excluded when the geographic unit of analysis is a school district. Although we will continue to report population-level outcomes based on school district boundaries, we will always honor in our partnership-level storytelling individualized and rich descriptions of the place in which their work occurs and for whom.

Furthermore, reporting lags and the relative scale of partnerships' early outreach prevent population-level outcomes from serving as evidence of the local impact of place-based initiatives. Annual reporting on partnership-level short-term outcomes will counter this time lag and create rich evidence of local impact. Early outcomes from the first academic year of funded work (2023-24 AY) will be available in Spring 2025.

As our program evolves, we will continue to consider critically how best to gather and share outward the rich experiences, assets, and strengths of the learners and communities we support. How this looks—and for whom—will vary based on the partnership's work, the communities a partnership serves, and the context in which their work occurs. The predetermined structure of and suppression within existing data sources may continue to shape our ability to provide demographic nuance within population-level outcomes, but this will not prevent us from affirming individuals' and communities' identities as we work alongside our partners to surface evidence of change resulting from the work of RCG partnerships.
