Program Descriptions

The Washington State Educator Workforce Program provides a suite of financial aid opportunities to develop and support the educator workforce, including conditional scholarships and grants. Conditional scholarship means a loan that is forgiven in whole or in part in exchange for service as a certificated employee at a public school in Washington State. A grant is financial support that does not need to be repaid. See the definitions section for more information.

These programs are administered by the Washington Student Achievement Council (WSAC). Please visit our website for more information, including updated application deadlines.

For all conditional scholarships

- Award amounts can vary depending on enrollment, financial need, and funding.
- Priority is given to all applicants who are active duty or veterans of the U.S. Armed Forces or members of the National Guard, and who meet the program's eligibility requirements.
- Applicants must complete, or have already completed, a FAFSA or WASFA within 10 days of completing an application. The FAFSA or WASFA must be for the academic year they are seeking an award.
- Applicants must not owe a repayment to any state or federal grant or scholarship, nor be in default on a state or federal student loan. It is okay to have student loans so long as the applicant is in good standing.
- Applicants must not be pursuing a degree in theology.
- Washington State residency is not required. However, recipients must be confident they can fulfill the teaching service obligation at a public school in Washington State to avoid monetary repayment.

Teaching Service Obligation

A conditional scholarship is a conditional loan. To avoid repayment of the remaining amount (principal) plus interest and fees, recipients must:

- Complete the credential within the allowed time (extensions may be granted with prior approval from WSAC):
 - Educator Retooling Conditional Scholarship: complete the requirements of the endorsement in the equivalent of one full-time academic year.
 - Pipeline for Paraeducators Conditional Scholarship:
 - Complete an Associate of Arts degree at a community and technical college in four academic years or less.
 - Enroll and continue to make satisfactory progress in a teacher preparation program and earn the Washington State residency teacher certificate.
 - All other conditional scholarships: no time limit is required.
- Secure employment as a teacher or substitute teacher at a Washington K-12 public common school, charter schools, or tribal school within 6 months after completing their endorsement. Comparable employment in other instructional roles may be acceptable with pre-approval from WSAC.
- Fulfill the teaching service obligation of two full-time school years (360 full-time days) for each year of funding received. This obligation can be fulfilled in half the time, or one full-time school year (180 full-time days), for service in a shortage area (see Appendix A).

Additional terms and conditions for earning loan forgiveness

- Borrowers can earn service credit for full-time or part-time positions so long as they teach for at least the minimum of 40 full-time days during the school year (i.e., no credit is earned for teaching fewer than 40 days/year). Partial days earn prorated service credit. For example, 80 half-time days equal 40 full-time days.
- Borrowers earn service credit for each day they teach from the minimum of 40 days up to the maximum of 180 days per school year.
- Borrowers are responsible for submitting documentation of teaching service to WSAC at the end of each school year. A form will be emailed to recipients each year that reporting is required.
- The information outlined in this section is a summary of the terms of the service obligation, which are outlined in more detail in the Promissory Note. Recipients are responsible for reviewing and understanding the Promissory Note.

How to document teaching service

WSAC will contact participants towards the end of their academic program to verify when they will be certified. After receiving certification and becoming a teacher at an eligible school, participants must submit a yearly service form until their service is complete.

At the end of each academic year in June, WSAC will email a service form (see the WSAC Teachers website for the most updated form) that will be completed by the participant and signed by the participant's administrator by August 31. An example is included in Appendix C for reference.

Definitions

Conditional Scholarships

Conditional scholarships support individuals in pursuit of teaching in subjects or locations of high need, also known as “shortage areas” (see Appendix A). In return for the funding received, the recipient commits to teach at a Washington K-12 public common school for two years, or to fulfill the obligation in half the time by serving in a shortage area. If the recipient does not fulfill the teaching service obligation, the recipient must repay the conditional scholarship, adjusted for any service completed, plus interest and fees.

Deferments

If special circumstances prevent the recipient from being able to continue in the preparation program or in teaching, the borrower may request, in writing, a deferment to temporarily postpone their obligation. Deferments must be pre-approved by WSAC and are only granted when the borrower’s circumstances qualify based on WSAC’s deferment policies.

Grace Period

Borrowers are granted a single, six-month grace period before they must begin service or make repayments. For Pipeline for Paraeducators recipients, the grace period begins whenever the borrower leaves the program, drops below half-time enrollment, or earns the residency teaching certificate. For Educator Retooling recipients, the grace period begins when the borrower earns the new endorsement or an equivalent of one full-time academic year passes, whichever occurs first. No interest is charged during the grace period.

Maximum Term

The borrower must fulfill the entire obligation, via teaching service or monetary repayment or a combination of the two, within ten years, not including the six-month grace period. The obligation can be cancelled only in the event of the borrower’s death or total and permanent disability.

Monetary Repayment

If the borrower does not start teaching at an approved location or stops teaching prior to fulfilling the entire obligation and is not in an approved deferment or grace period, then the conditional scholarship converts to a loan and must be repaid. The amount due will be proportionate to the unsatisfied portion of the teaching service obligation, plus interest and fees. For example, if the borrower fulfills half of the obligation through teaching service, then the initial loan balance would equal the remaining half of the conditional scholarship award.

Borrowers in repayment status are expected to make monthly payments during the maximum term. Borrowers can make a prepayment or additional principal payments to potentially reduce the fee and interest charges and the time it takes to pay off the loan.

Rolling Basis

For programs with applications on a rolling basis, applications may be submitted at any time. There is no deadline for applying.

Promissory Note

A promissory note is a legal document that outlines the terms of the conditional scholarship, including the service obligation and the recipient’s responsibility to fulfill the conditions of the scholarship. All recipients of conditional scholarship must sign a promissory note to receive funds.

Appendix A: 2022 Shortage Areas

The Educator Workforce Programs are designed to address areas of educator shortage. The establishing legislation defines “shortage area” as an endorsement or geographic area with a shortage of certificated employees. The areas are defined by the Washington Professional Educator Standards Board (PESB), in consultation with the Office of the Superintendent of Public Instruction, using quantitative and qualitative measures.*

If you do not see your endorsement area listed, you may still qualify for consideration if you provide compelling evidence of a unique local shortage through the Administrator Letter of Support submitted with your application. A letter template is available in the Resources section at www.wsac.wa.gov/teachers.

Source: PESB, January 2022

*Methodology: PESB calculates teacher shortage by adding the number of teachers teaching out-of-endorsement in a content area to the number of teachers with conditional certificates in that same content area. That sum is divided by the total teacher FTE in that geographical area. A full technical definition of this shortage calculation will be available on the PESB website.
