This partnership is a strategy central to our efforts to achieve racial equity in higher education. In alignment with each of our own organization's Equity, Diversity, and Inclusion commitments, the Aim Higher Training initiative is a step in the direction to providing all of Washington students with access to financial aid resources, information and support.
Aim Higher Washington Trainings
Looking Forward to 2022

The Aim Higher Training Initiative in partnership with the Council of Presidents, the Independent Colleges of Washington, the Washington Student Achievement Council, and the State Board for Community and Technical Colleges was designed to ensure all students in Washington have equitable access to financial aid information, trained navigators and support across the higher education sector.

This partnership is a strategy central to our efforts to achieve racial equity in higher education. In alignment with each of our organization’s Equity, Diversity, and Inclusion commitments, the Aim Higher Training initiative is a step in the direction to providing all of Washington students with access to financial aid resources, information and support.
This partnership is a strategy central to our efforts to achieve racial equity in higher education. In alignment with each of our own organization's Equity, Diversity, and Inclusion commitments, the Aim Higher Training initiative is a step in the direction to providing all of Washington students with access to financial aid resources, information and support.