

Washington Regional Challenge Grant Program

Appendix C. Educational Outcomes in RCG Service Regions, by Geographic Region

Appendix C includes publicly available data at the district level for all school districts within at least one RCG partnership's service region. The included data capture key outcomes and student sub-groups identified in RCW 28B.120.060. Specifically, we identify district-level high school graduation rates, direct to college enrollment rates, and college completion rates overall and by race/ethnicity, FRPL status, and ELL program participation.

These reporting classifications, including a reliance on federally defined categories for race/ethnicity, are indicative of a larger challenge with administrative data. Even at its best, it cannot capture the multitude of experiences and identities present within individuals and across communities, and the need to ensure privacy leads to data suppression that further limits what can be reported. The result is often aggregate categorizations—such as Asian or multiracial—that cannot demonstrate the diversity of lived experiences that are embedded in these categories.

School districts are organized by broad geographic regions across the state, with partners operating in a given school district noted for each district. This use of school district boundaries to define service regions reflects the need to report population-level outcomes using an easily identifiable administrative delineation of region. Although we will continue to report population-level outcomes based on school district boundaries, we will always honor within partnership-level storytelling individualized and rich descriptions of the place in which their work occurs and for whom.

Furthermore, reporting lags and the relative scale of partnerships' early outreach prevent population-level outcomes from serving as evidence of the local impact of place-based initiatives. The RCG process of co-designing short-term outcomes, which partnerships report on for each academic year of funded work, counters this time lag and creates rich evidence of impact. In spring 2026, WSAC will publicly report on key findings from all twelve active partners' short-term outcomes for the 2024-25 academic year.

As our program evolves, we will continue to consider critically how best to gather and share outward the rich experiences, assets, and strengths of the learners and communities we support. How this looks—and for whom—will vary based on the partnership's work, the communities a partnership serves, and the context in which their work occurs. The predetermined structure of and suppression within existing data sources may continue to shape our ability to provide demographic nuance within population-level outcomes, but this will not prevent us from affirming individuals' and communities' identities as we work alongside our partners to surface evidence of change resulting from the work of RCG partnerships.

Questions can be directed to RegionalChallengeGrant@wsac.wa.gov with the subject line "2025 Legislative Report."

Please note: A February 2026 update integrates school-level educational outcomes alongside district-level outcomes for one district, based on the partnership's feedback that district-level outcomes are diluted by the inclusion of data on a state operated medium/maximum security juvenile correctional facility that is part of the school district. All data sources and reporting dates remain unchanged.
